

1. What was / has been your occupation before entering politics?

I worked 35 years at Bell in the engineering department, in project management. I was also involved with the union, representing the clerical employees for 30 years.

2. Do you live in the riding and, if so, how long has it been your home?

I live in Montpellier. When I retired moved here in a region. It took me 2 years to find the right home but I did.

3. What has been your main involvement with your community outside of work (volunteer activities, etc.)?

As a young mother I was very involved and volunteered with all the sports my son was in. With Bell, we also had charities we worked with. On one occasion we worked hard to grant a wish for a young girl. It was very rewarding.

4. In your life what event, or book, or speech, or song or even TV show has made the biggest impression on you and your political thinking? Why?

It may look strange but 'The West Wing' was very instrumental in me wanting to know more and be part of the big picture. Yes it is about the States but still very relevant to the workings of a government. The highs and lows, the process to turn a bill into a law, it is impressive.

5. What previous politician, (alive or dead, but not currently in parliament) is a role model for you?

I like to see women involved and active in politics, I don't really have a role model as I am new to politics. It would be easy to mention Winston Churchill, René Lévesque, Jack Layton and politically correct to mention Brian Mulroney but... of all my brief meetings with him, I am quite impressed by Andrew Scheer.

6. What policy in your party's platform do you think matters most to the people in your riding?

Affordability is the issue I hear about in my riding. They are tired of barely making ends meet and are looking for a government who will help them get ahead. Life is expensive, it is a fact. Through a broad range of tax cuts and tax credits, Andrew Scheer and the Conservatives will put more money in everyone's pocket. This is good news for all Canadians.

7. Recent polls suggest many Canadians are disillusioned with politics. If elected, what would you do to address those concerns?

I can only agree as we see a bit of it while campaigning. Argenteuil – La petite Nation was created in 2013 therefore quite a new riding. The dedication and involvement of an MP in his own riding can change the voter's perception of politics and I intend to be very involved.
